

T3's
PICK

ENTERTAINMENT
It's the default category for Father's Day, and this year there are a few god reasons to go with the tried and tested

Kogan Slim BD 2.0

If you're looking for a cheap way to get your dad into the Blu-ray scene then look no further than the Kogan Slim BD 2.0. This region free, slim design player will also up-scale your DVDs. OK, that's all pretty standard stuff, but when you look at the price it certainly feels like options that are above and beyond. We haven't tested the load times yet but Kogan says they are fast...
$149

www.kogan.com.au

JCMatthew My Movie

Want to entertain Dad on a budget? This is the trick. The JC Matthew My Movie is an 8.9-inch screened device that can sit comfortably anywhere in his bedroom. The HD screen will playback movies from a range of common formats as well as photos. You can also play music too, if you really, really need to. The battery lasts a solid six hours and you can use it as a basic eBook reader too.
$249

www.jcmatthew.com.au

OXX Classic DAB+

Tune your father into the digital radio revolution with the most stylish DAB+ radio on the market. The OXX Classic Digital mixes style with features. Not only does it play DAB+ and FM, but you can listen to internet radio and stream media. The 6W speaker output produces ample sound while the glossy black or white finish will suit most rooms.
$300

www.oxxdigital.com.au

Monster Beats by Dr. Dre Solo

Whether your father wants get some time out at home or block out the garbage on the way to work, Dr. Dre Solo will do the trick. They are the slimmed down version of the original Dr. Dre's and a feature Control Talk cable with microphone so he can take calls without taking them off. The folding design makes them even more portable.
$279

www.chifi.com.au

CardioBoxer

Who says entertainment can't be physical? If you're father gets his kicks out of a good work out, then get him one of these. The CardioBoxer is a fully adjustable machine that will give your old man a complete boxing workout so he rightly ask you to stop calling him 'old man'. It's easy to install and pretty hard to break, unless your Dad is the size Big Arnie once was.
$299

www.cardioboxer.com.au